

We came, we worked and sweated and smiled.

Myself, Elmer and Don launched after discussing options with the turtle who advised not to anything too quickly.

We then headed upstream toward the Lauradale strainer. Once there the HWMWAIC (Head Water Moccasin What Am In Charge) had a short meeting with Dale who decided that if he wanted it he could have it.

Elmer then arrived and explained to Mr. W. Moccasin that his spot would be a lot nicer if all the junk were removed. Now if he would just move for a few minutes . . . and give the hired help a chance we would clean up his property at no charge. . . They made a deal and we got 3 full bags from that one place.

We broke some of the strainer so that water was flowing better and it is now an easy pass through for paddling. Don has experience herding cats and found it useful in getting the logs to go down stream.

So, here's Elmer . . . Just another day at the office . . .

See you next time,
Dale Weston
